To whom it may concern.

26th March 2020.

Due to the current outbreak of Coronavirus (COVID-19) we have prepared the following statement on our operations during this unprecedented period:

Our critical clients include the medical and semiconductor industries.

Our medical clients (i.e. TERUMO Aortic) manufacture essential cardiovascular items ranging from surgical devices, endovascular stents to hybrid items. This industry and its supply chain are designated as “essential business.”

Semiconductors are the key components of the technologies that control critical infrastructure, such as water systems, the energy grid, communication networks and national security. Again, the semiconductor industry and its supply chain are designated as “essential infrastructure” and/or “essential business”. Our clients in this sector include Intel®.

Sel-Tek Ltd and their OEM partners JST Manufacturing Inc. and Trebor International® are critical suppliers to the medical and semiconductor industry and will continue to operate as an “essential business”.

We currently enforce a safe practice policy inclusive of PPE to comply with social distancing regulations and liaise with the customers prior to any facility visit to ensure that all on-site H&S practices are strictly adhered to. We have also issued a COVID-19 statement which you can view at www.sel-tek.com

Please feel free to contact me at any point via the media detailed in the footnote of this page should you require further information or clarification regarding the content of this statement.
